Hurricane Odile Aftermath

Hurricane Odile hit the Baja peninsula hard September 14, 2014 as a category 3 hurricane with heavy rains, 125-mph winds, and severe flooding. It caused extensive damage in Cabo San Lucas, San Jose del Cabo, La Paz, Todos Santos, LA Bay, Mulege and Loreto. Phone lines, electricity and water were lost and while it has been restored to many areas, some neighborhoods are still without services. Damage to buildings will take time to repair and they are still working to clean up debris. The San Jose del Cabo airport is closed for commercial flights until October 8. Roads are passable all the way from Tijuana to Cabo for all vehicles. There are a few places where there are some washouts and delays due to construction, but for the most part, the trip is good. Gas is available and ATMs are back in service. ### San Ysidro Border Wait Times Reduced!

At long last the northbound border lanes at the San Ysidro land port of entry have reopened, and wait times at the border have gone from hours to minutes. There are now 25 double stacked lanes with 46 booths. The goal is to have the wait times for all lanes never more than 20 minutes.

From the DBTC Office

Our hearts go out to all those effected by the recent hurricanes in Baja. We empathize with the trauma and loss of homes, possessions and memories to tourists, expats and local Mexican families.

We are heartened by the response of the Mexican government to evacuate tourists, restore electricity, communication lines and water and help rebuild roads and structures. The resiliency of the Mexican people shines through again. Buena suerte, amigos.

DB members can assist with donations and by continuing with your plans to travel to the peninsula. Let us know if we can help you with your paperwork or by giving an update on current conditions.

FMM Tourist Permit Crackdown. Officials are cracking down on FMM tourist permits in San Felipe. They've been sweeping the beaches and going door to door to check for FMMs or permanent resident cards. The official rule is that if you are going to be 20 kilometers past the border and/or in Baja for more than 72 hours, you must have an FMM. The easiest way to get an FMM is through Discover Baja. ## HOW TO BE PREPARED IN AN EMERGENCY IN BAJA

◆ Before you travel, register with the Smart Traveler Enrollment Program (STEP). This is a free service to allow U.S. citizens and nationals traveling abroad to enroll their trip with the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate. <https://step.state.gov/step/>

STEP allows you to:

- Receive important information from the Embassy about safety conditions in your destination country, helping you make informed decisions about your travel plans.
- Help the U.S. Embassy contact you in an emergency, whether natural disaster, civil unrest, or family emergency.
- Help family and friends get in touch with you in an emergency.

◆ Get international travel insurance so that while traveling you have access to the following:

- International medical insurance
- Emergency evacuation, repatriation and worldwide travel assistance
- 24/7 emergency response center

www.discoverbaja.com/mexican-auto-insurance/travel-insurance/

◆ Be prepared. Have extra water, fuel, and an emergency car kit.

◆ Make extra copies of important paperwork (passport, drivers license, credit cards, Mexican auto insurance, tourist visa, etc). Bring a set with you and leave a set with a friend or family member at home and scan and email a set to yourself as well. Make sure someone at home has a copy of your trip itinerary.

◆ During Hurricane season (June through November with Aug-Oct being the worst months) check with weather forecasts like wunderground.com and the National Hurricane Center.

◆ If you dial 078 in Baja from any public, private or cell phone it will direct you to the tourist assistance hotline. Their bilingual staff can help you out with anything from emergency response to general travel information. 066 is the Mexican equivalent of 911 and will get you emergency response.

BUEN PROVECHO: La Justina, Tijuana

By Jennifer Kramer
bajatheothercalifornia.com

There's no question that the cultural renaissance of northern Baja is being led by the chefs of Tijuana. A decade ago, the popular Avenida Revolución in downtown Tijuana was a rowdy scene of drunken gringos, zonkeys and cheap souvenir shops. With the decline of tourism over the past number of years, the Tijuanaenses have reclaimed their city and are slowly turning Revolución into an area with art galleries, craft beer breweries and restaurants that are being globally recognized for their gastronomic inventiveness. These new places are popping up amongst the old institutions and the still-shuttered doors. La Justina, a new gastro bar right in the heart of the avenue, embodies what the revolution on Revolución is all about – nouveau thinking and well-crafted creation in the midst of old school traditions and down-trodden surroundings. This is the new Tijuana.

About two years ago, Jaime Brambila, whose parents used to own Café La Especial (a now-closed Tijuana institution located just below the current space of La Justina in the Pasaje Gomez) started working on creating a gastro bar upstairs from the old Café. He tapped chef Chad White (of San Diego restaurants Plancha Baja Med, Sea Rocket Bistro and the new Común) to create the local menu. Snake Oil Cocktail Co. (also from San Diego) was brought in to help create the inventive cocktail menu. The space was made into a haven of upcycled industrial materials. In early 2014 La Justina opened its doors.

The restaurant is decorated in reclaimed and raw materials – wooden tables and chairs, hanging light bulb fixtures, exposed brick walls, rope chandeliers, a vertical succulent garden on the entry wall. A neon sign, original to Café La Especial, welcomes the stylish Tijuanaense clientele. The vibe is effortless-chic by way of rustic-industrial.

We started with cocktails, which were all carefully crafted and delicious. The deconstructed cocktails contain all of the traditional ingredients with an extra kick or two. My Michelada was made with the usual beer and clamato along with a splash of tequila. The margarita adds a slice of cactus and a black ash salt rim. Everything on the menu (both cocktails and food) is well thought-out and carefully executed.

While we sipped our cocktails and perused the menu, we munched on the deliciously spiced house palomitas (popcorn). In the end, I couldn't decide on trying just one thing, so I decided to try it all with the seasonal chef's tasting. The chef's tasting that consisted of courses of fresh salad, raw oysters, seasoned french fries, beets and soft white cheese, pork belly with corn arepas, and muscles and clams in a savory tomato broth. To top it all off for dessert we had tres leches with a crusted caramelized crust and house-made donuts. Perfection.

The full chef tasting plus drinks only came to about $30 per person. You can't find this echelon of food and drinks at these prices anywhere north of the border. It's time to join the revolution.
